After a poem of Yeats

Everyone's work comes to nothing.
It's not the undoing,
      that counts.

My own little dog has his day,
      and then another,

  and, perhaps...
a grad student will add it all up,
  and add considerably--
         to a degree.